EXPANDING NSTL VISITORS CENTER—The enhancement of the National Space Technology Laboratories' Visitors Center, including construction of a multi-level addition, is well under way in preparation for the record number of visitors expected this year as a result of the 1984 World's Fair in New Orleans. Officials estimate that some 250,000 people will visit NSTL during 1984 between May 12 and Nov. 11. Work on the 4,500 square foot addition adjacent to the Visitors Center is proceeding on schedule and should be completed by March 31. Groundbreaking ceremonies for the addition were held Oct. 29. The new facility will house large-scale models and displays highlighting the varied missions of NASA and NSTL's resident agencies. The existing Visitors Center exhibit area will be transformed into an operational center and theme hall depicting the history and activities of NASA and NSTL agencies involved in exploring space, the oceans and earth. A special section of the exhibit hall will feature the careers and contributions of Mississippi astronauts Fred Haise, Dick Truly and Don Peterson. Meanwhile, an updated multi-media presentation to be shown in the Visitors Center auditorium will make its debut next month. The 30-minute film and slide show will describe NSTL's unique history, activities and facilities.

State official says oil pit operation may continue

By WAYNE DUCOMB JR.

The supervisor of the State Oil and Gas Board says although a pit containing an oily fluid near a producing Hancock County gas well does not have a permit, the operation complies with state regulations and will be approved for continued use.

Dr. Richard Henderson, board supervisor, said recently in Jackson that the well site in question is in the Bayou Phillip area in Section 31, Township 8 South, Range 14 West and named Sharp 31-2, No. 1.

He said the well at the end of First Street is operated by Marshall R. Young Oil Co. based in Fort Worth, Tex.

The oval pit is about three or four feet deep, some 25 feet wide and about 30 feet long. A pipe extends from the adjacent gas well to the large hole in the ground.

A local resident fears the oily liquid will seep underground in aquifers or overflow into the nearby bayou.

Henderson said the pit at the well site is utilized in a "blow water operation" which is a commonly utilized method in the industry to periodically clear older well shafts of "fresh water" to renew or improve gas production.

The state requires a two-year permit for these water pits, but due to oversights by the board and the operator, the permit for the Sharp well apparently was not renewed, Henderson reported.

He explained that the state inspector for the Waveland Field here was killed last year in an automobile accident and due to the remote locations of Hancock wells the new inspector probably missed checking at the Sharp operation.

Henderson also explained, since he began working as supervisor in July, he has begun actively requiring operators to maintain pit permits.

Many operators in the past have assumed that the state issued permanent one-time permits for blow water pits, he said.

"The status of this is the operator and pumper have been contacted by the oil and gas board. The operator will permit the pit and the oil and gas board can't see any reason why it can't be," Henderson stated.

"There was a little bit of oil accumulation and a little left over residue, but there's not any saltwater in it," he said regarding the contents of the pit.

Henderson said if the pit contains anything other than fresh water, the operator must have that material regularly pumped out and properly disposed of.

The resident also complained that the well is accessible to the public which is making it a garbage dumping ground and possibly dangerous if valves are tampered with.

In addition, there was no sign designating the name of the well and operator.

Henderson said state law does not require fencing of a well site, but the operator will do so to prevent public access and is cleaning up the dumped garbage.

However, a sign designating the well name and operator is required by law and this has been installed by Marshall R. Young, Henderson reported.

"They will be allowed to continue using the pit as long as it is cleaned up and they at least put up a gate," he stated.

Regarding an oily material on the ground nearby the pit, Henderson speculated it might be the result of spillage when the pit was pumped into a tank truck or unusually high pressure from the blow water operation might have thrown some of the liquid outside of the pit.

He regarded that spillage as minor, unavoidable and typically found at well sites.

The board supervisor said such pit permits are "staff approved" and do not require action by the oil and gas board.

"The main thing is that the operator has been notified and they can do one of two things, apply for a permit or discontinue use and fill in the pit," he added.

The board is responsible for monitoring potential pollution problems within the area leased for a particular well, but if pollutants are entering state-claimed wetlands the State Department of Natural Resources Bureau of Pollution Control becomes involved.

A recent inspection of the well site by the BPC found no evidence of saltwater or oil pollution in nearby wetland areas.

Hancock supervisor warns:

County forbids fences at public cemeteries

By WAYNE DUCOMB JR.

James "Travira," Hancock County District Five supervisor, says the county is forbidding the erection of any new fences in three public cemeteries it owns and in one area will take down fences recently built in spite of the restriction.

Travira pointed out Wednesday at the St. Joseph's Rotten Bayou Cemetery located near Diamondhead that some families are abusing a past privilege which allowed the building of fences to form family plots on land provided free by the county.

He explained that families have fenced relatively large plots at Rotten Bayou, the Bayou Coco Cemetery in Kiln and the Sand Hill Cemetery on Firetower Road, all in District Five and owned by the county.

At Rotten Bayou he noted in a recently cleared area that at least two families have fenced or marked off with posts, plots which could provide space for at least 100 graves.

Two signs at the cemetery and near those recently formed plots clearly state that fencing is not allowed.

He said the families have been notified to remove the recently placed fences or the county will do so.

Travira reported no existing fences at Sand Hill or Bayou Coco will be removed, but new ones will be.

He also noted that the fences hinder burial ceremonies because in many instances they are too close to each other to allow smooth movement of a funeral procession.

Clifford Lizana of the Fenton Community, member of a three-member County Graveyard Committee, said Wednesday at the cemetery that many citizens have complained regarding the abusive fencing.

He said the committee, also consisting of Pat Harvill of Waveland and Jimmy Ray Ladner of Kiln, is formulating guidelines for use of all three cemeteries.

"The committee was formed about two years ago, it should have been done about 60 years ago," he stated.

Travira said the fencing custom apparently began as a protective measure when the state allowed the "open range" grazing of cattle, but now state law requires cows to be in a fenced area.

He reported at Rotten Bayou the county has about 10 acres left out of the original 40-acre area donated to Hancock in 1883 by the Cuevas family for the public cemetery.

The supervisor said many people believe that Amuniation Catholic Parish owns the cemetery, but this is not true.

He explained the parish owns about 20 acres adjacent to the cemetery.

At Bayou Coco, Merritt Jones of the adjacent Charlotte Farms plans to donate the county land to expand that facility, Travira revealed.

The county will clear and fence the land, sell marked plot spaces and utilize that money to maintain the new area, the supervisor said.

Travira said the county engineer will design the Bayou Coco addition with drives, plot spaces and landscaping.

He reported the amount of land to be donated has not been finalized, but the area will roughly be from the existing cemetery to Kiln-Delisle Road.

Lizana said the county will continue allowing free burial spaces at all existing cemeteries for all county residents.

He reported that Harrison County residents are allowed to utilize the Rotten Bayou facility since it is located near the Hancock-Harrison border.

Lizana urged anyone with questions about the cemeteries to call the telephone numbers posted at Rotten Bayou which are 467-2154, 255-3188 or 255-7848.

CEMETERY OBSTRUCTION—Pointing out Wednesday some wires inconsiderately strung between fences in the older section of the St. Joseph's Rotten Bayou Cemetery which prevent movement between the grave sites are Clifford Lizana, left, of the Hancock County Graveyard Committee, and James Travira, County District Five supervisor. Travira noted the fencing of plots at the county's three cemeteries in his district is now forbidden due to recent abuses of this privilege at the county's free burial sites. Officials nix closing schools, epidemic continues

By NAN PATTON EHRBRIGHT

State officials have advised against closing schools in Hancock County in spite of an apparent influenza epidemic.

Assistant Hancock County School Superintendent James Pair said yesterday that absenteeism "seems to be easing off at the south end of the county, and picking up at the north end."

He said about 150 students were absent at the Hancock North Central complex Wednesday.

Last Friday, about one-fourth of the approximately 1,440 students were absent at Hancock North Central.

Of the 830 students at Gulfview Elementary School, 270 were absent Friday.

Only 20 of the 250 students at Charles E. Murphy Elementary School were absent then.

Bay St. Louis Municipal Separate

School District Superintendent J.D. McCullough said absenteeism was also easing off in his district by mid-week this week.

A total of 225 of the 1,007 students in that district were absent Wednesday. "That's not all due to flu," he said. "You can probably take six percent off that figure."

Last Friday 400 students were absent in McCullough's district.

Hancock County Superintendent Toyrell Randolph called the State Department of Health last week when the absenteeism rate rose sharply.

Samples from some of the sick children are being collected to send to the Center for Disease Control in Atlanta, but health officials say by the time the center diagnoses the specific illness, the epidemic will probably be over.

Affected children are reportedly displaying the full range of flu symptoms—headaches, fever, sore throats, upset stomachs and aching muscles.

Health officials say that treatment consists of bed rest, taking aspirin and drinking lots of fluids.

School officials in Pass Christian and in Slidell and New Orleans, La. are also reporting "high" absenteeism from influenza.

Pass Christian Superintendent LeRoy Lizana said yesterday that most of the students who were out last week have returned, but there are some new students absent this week.

"But I think we're out of the woods," he added.

IN NEW ORLEANS
Influenza has forced one school in the New Orleans area to close and is causing high absenteeism at others, school officials reported Tuesday.

"The Most Holy Name of Jesus Elementary School in New Orleans will close from Wednesday through Friday," said Thomas Finney, a spokesman for the Archdiocese of New Orleans.

Police recover truck stolen in July, '82

By EDGAR PEREZ

The Bay St. Louis Police Department has recovered a vehicle stolen in July, 1982 from the former Taran-Lane Chevrolet agency in Bay St. Louis.

Captain Robert Butler said the vehicle was stopped following a high-speed chase by St. Tammany Parish sheriff's deputies in Covington, La.

The Louisiana authorities charged the driver with possession of property allegedly stolen from a Covington nursery.

A check through the National Crime

Information Center revealed the vehicle to be one of at least four trucks stolen from the Bay St. Louis agency in July, 1982.

Butler said the driver, Archie E. Lowery, 44, of Covington was returned to Hancock County where he was charged with possession of the stolen vehicle.

Lowery was booked at the Hancock County Jail and released after posting $10,000 bond, Bay police reported.

The case remains under investigation in an effort to recover the additional stolen vehicles, Butler added.

County jobless rate lowest in one year

By WAYNE DUCOMB JR.

Hancock County's unemployment rate has decreased to its lowest point in one year, current State Employment Service figures show.

The employment service report for December shows Hancock with a jobless rate of 10.9 percent which is the lowest since Dec. 1982 when that figure dipped to 9.5 percent.

In 1983, the county experienced its highest recorded unemployment rate in June with a 16.9 percent figure.

The Dec. 1983 figure represents 1,010 unemployed civilian Hancock residents out of a local work force of 9,270 based on the report.

Calculated on monthly figures, the 1983 average unemployment rate is 13.1 percent, civilian labor force is 9,648 and number of unemployed is 1,263.

In 1982, the average jobless rate was 8.53 percent, civilian labor force was 9,433 and number of unemployed was 803.

House Of Representative
Post 122

I believe the people of our county and state are looking for new faces and ideas. That we need representation which is not tied to any special interests or groups, but is responsive to the needs of all our people. That our position at the bottom of nearly every socio-economic category is not deserved or necessary, but the result of powerful resistance to necessary change, reform and new ideas. We can continue to experience the problems and mistakes of our past or we can strive for change and a better future — the choice is ours.

I will provide all the citizens of our District 122 with energetic, honest and responsive representation. My roots, education, and active interest in the problems and progress of our County provide me with the ability to represent all the people of our County and to be responsive to their needs.

Telephone company continues effort to protect data

South Central Bell reports it is filing suit in Hinds County Chancery Court for an injunction to protect market information and competitive sales data that it has furnished to the Mississippi Public Service Commission.

This information was among that requested by the MPSC, intervenors and others in connection with the upcoming hearings on South Central Bell's recent rate restructuring request.

The company filed for the restructuring on Nov. 18, 1983. "We have furnished voluminous amounts of information to the Commission," said J. N. McGowen, vice president for South Central Bell's Mississippi operations.

"All of the data we originally filed and all but a small amount of data that has subsequently been requested by the commission and others are being made public. However, we are asking the courts to restrict that small amount of data to the commission's use only because it could benefit only our competitors if made public," he added.

On Dec. 22, the commission granted a protective order that instructed the company to mark the documents "private" or "confidential" and provided that they would be kept confidential and not be made part of the public record.

On Dec. 30 the Mississippi Publishers Corporation requested access to the documents, citing the Mississippi Public Records Act of 1983.

Mississippi Publishers renewed its demand for access to the documents on Jan. 3.

The commission cancelled its protective order on Jan. 3, and on Jan. 4 notified South Central Bell that it would release the documents to Mississippi Publishers Corporation unless South Central Bell obtained a court order protecting the documents as confidential.

"We are not asking for any more consideration than any other competitive business would under these circumstances," said McGowen.

"We believe the court should rule on the confidentiality of these documents before they are released," McGowen said.

"If they are released before a ruling, the damage is done even if the court later agrees with us," he added.

McGowen said the company is operating in a unique situation because part of its business is regulated and part is competitive.

"There are private vendors who compete with us for long distance service and vendors who sell equipment that directly competes with some of our central office services," he said.

"We have invested a tremendous amount of money to provide telephone service in Mississippi," McGowen said.

"When we lose sales revenues to competitors, we lose revenues critical to the support of our investment," he added.

McGowen concluded, "We are furnishing the information that the commission has requested to carry out its regulatory function as mandated by the Mississippi Legislature. However, we must protect our ability to sell and compete so that we can continue to operate our business soundly and to provide good service."

When DUI enforcement is up, fatalities are down

Patrol leader promises drunk driving priority

Kenneth R. Dukes of Jackson has been named assistant chief of the Mississippi Highway Patrol by James D. Roberts Jr., Commissioner of public safety.

Dukes, 51, recently completed his 20th year of service with the Highway Patrol.

As assistant chief of patrol, Dukes has command of field operations within the department which include the traffic enforcement regions, the Criminal Investigation Bureau and Driver Services Bureau.

In announcing the promotion, Roberts said, "Lt. Col. Dukes has demonstrated professionalism as an administrator within the patrol for the past 11 years being responsible for a budget of nearly $3.5 million."

Dukes said as assistant chief he will continue to emphasize the Highway Patrol's enforcement of the DUI law.

"It is no surprise that Highway Patrol troopers made 10 percent more DUI arrests in 1963 than in 1962 and that on those same roads and highways that had an increase in DUI arrests they ended the year with a nine percent decrease in fatalities," Dukes said.

"Stricter DUI enforcement and a decrease in fatalities go hand in hand. We plan to continue this program," he said.

Dukes was graduated from the Highway Patrol Cadet School in 1963 assigned to Greenwood. When the Mississippi Law Enforcement Officers' Training Academy opened for classes in 1966 he served as an instructor.

In 1973 he became assistant director of operations and fleet safety officer being named director of fleet maintenance in 1980.

Dukes served from 1951 until 1955 in the United States Navy.

Before joining the patrol he was employed by Knox Glass Company in Flowood for 13 years.

Born in Mendenhall, Dukes is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Dukes of Pearl. He is married to the former Alice Rae Mason, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Mason of Morton.

The Dukes have two daughters, Mrs. Donna Gandy and Pamela Dukes, and one son, Kenneth Dukes Jr.

Quotables by Cuevas

We are hoping all qualified electors will not forget that Saturday will be an election day and all will get out and vote.

It will be a run-off election for House of Representative Post 122 and will involve all but four Hancock County Precincts.

The polls open at 7 a.m. and close at 6 p.m.

State Representative is a very important position and we hope there will be a large turnout of voters.

So, if you are qualified, we hope you vote on Saturday for the candidate of your choice.

The weather so far this year has been either too cold or wet to do anything outside.

It seems that it doesn't want to stop raining or freezing and folks can hardly wait for it to dry and warm up a bit.

It will be a good while before anyone will be able to get their ground ready for a spring garden.

Of course watercress may be a good vegetable this year.

One new resident from the far North commented this week that the rain was a lot better than shoveling snow, and I guess he has a good point.

It appears we are like many other folks, always complaining about the weather, no matter the conditions.

Senator
Thad Cochran

U. S. Senator Thad Cochran is dispatching his mobile office staff to Hancock and Harrison counties on Tuesday, Jan. 31.

Sensor Cochran's mobile office staff will be at the Hancock County Courthouse in Bay St. Louis at 11 a.m., the Harrison County Courthouse in Gulfport at 1 p.m., and the Harrison Courthouse in Biloxi at 3 p.m. on Jan. 31.

Citizens who wish to discuss issues before the 96th Congress, or who may have a problem with a federal agency, are invited to stop by and discuss their concerns with Senator Cochran's mobile office staff.

The visits Jan. 31 to Bay St. Louis, Gulfport and Biloxi are part of the mobile office program initiated by Senator Cochran to help provide constituent service to citizens at the local level in the state's 82 counties.

On Wednesday morning, Feb. 1, Senator Cochran will conduct a "Washington Classroom" program with American government students at St. Martin High School in Jackson County. The Senator, via telephone from his Capital Hill office, will discuss issues and engage in a question and answer session with the St. Martin High group.

State Auditor Ray Mabius has released official policies of his office regarding the use of public funds, equipment, and personnel to provide gravel for private use, to work on private property, or to dig graves.

Mabius said, "I think it is important that my office set forth uniform, written regulations on these practices since enforcement of the laws in these areas has been uneven and sporadic in the past."

Mabius continued that, "although in some areas these practices have continued for a long time and are considered traditional duties of elected county officials, this does not change the fact that these practices are against the law. My office is bound to enforce these as well as all other laws and it will do so strongly."

"I hope," Mabius said, "that this will make the jobs of elected county officials easier by allowing them to concentrate all their attention on their wide-ranging and time-consuming public responsibilities, without having to be concerned about the political and economic ramifications of requests from private citizens to use public funds for private purposes."

Following is the legal position of the state auditor on supervisors or others using public funds, equipment or personnel to provide gravel for private use, to work on private property or to dig graves. In summary these positions are:

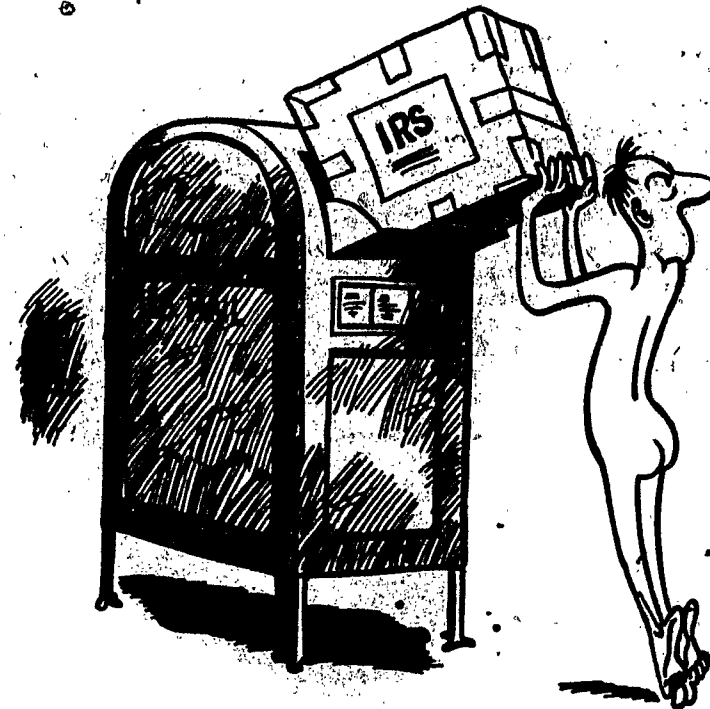

—Any construction or maintenance work, including the laying of gravel, done with public funds on private roads or driveways is not authorized by law, and supervisors are personally liable for the cost of such work.

—Graves are authorized by law to be dug by supervisors or others using county equipment, employees, or funds only for the burial of paupers and strangers found dead in the county.

The following memorandum states the legal grounds for these positions in greater detail.

"I hope that this clearly sets forth the positions my office will take. I also hope that this will make the jobs of elected county officials easier by allowing them to concentrate all their attention on their wide-ranging and time-consuming public responsibilities, without having to be concerned about the political and economic ramifications of requests from private citizens to use public funds for private

LEGAL BACKGROUNDS
Graveling Driveways - Work on private property

The jurisdiction of the boards of supervisors over roads in their respective counties has reference to public roads only.

The appropriation of public funds for construction and maintenance (including the laying of gravel) of private roads or driveways is an appropriation not authorized by law, and the members of the board are personally liable for the cost of illegally constructing and maintaining such roads.

A road leading from the public road to a person's residence or a road circling from the public road by a person's house and back to the public road is a private road, and not a public one.

Speaking on this issue, the Mississippi Supreme Court stated the following in the case of Saxon V. Harvey, 190 So.2d 901 at 906 (Miss. 1966):

"The legislative policy of this state...indicates that it has never been contemplated that a supervisor and a private landowner should establish a public road by the procedure of the landowner asking the member of the board of supervisors from the district in which the road is located to 'build him a road' by or to such landowner's residence or across his property upon the landowner consenting to furnish the land, as was the case here. Such procedure is unauthorized where the public generally, or other freeholders or householders, are not interested in the road. Coleman V. Shipp, 223 Miss 516, 78 So.2d (1955)."

"We have examined carefully the evidence in regard to the charges of misuse of county machinery, materials, and county employees as to the property of Roy Aultman, J. T. McMillan, Neal Smith, Gene Houston, Eure Brothers Construction Company, and Central By-Products Ltd. (Fred Gaddis road). We find they were substantially supported by the evidence and, in fact, by the defendant's admissions in regard to many of these activities."

"The only explanation of justification therefor is either that the amount of work involved was not great, the machinery and employees being in the immediate vicinity, or that public interest required the building of a road, particularly the road to Central By-Products Ltd., a business closely allied to the main industry of the county, the production and processing of chickens for the market."

"This argument is logical and perhaps in conformity with the practices of some other supervisors of the state who yield to the ever-insistent demands of their constituents for unauthorized private benefits, and though the construction of a road to a private industry might actually help the populace of the community and be carried out in utmost good faith, yet withal it must be denounced, as it is beyond the pale of the law since it is not in harmony with the regulations prescribed by the legislature as authorized by Mississippi Constitution S 170 (1890)."

"The exchange of topsoil for culverts and ditches in private pastures or the payment to the county by individuals who had accepted the unauthorized materials or services, though perhaps commendable, would not have the effect of legitimizing the unauthorized practices."

In view of the above, the general rule is that any work on private property done by county equipment and labor or involving the expenditure of public funds is illegal, and the board is liable for such diversion of public funds, equipment, labor and materials.

The jurisdiction of a board of supervisors over the county roads includes the road right-of-way. Accordingly, the board is required to properly maintain the road right-of-way up to but not beyond the private property line.

If the board of supervisors finds and determines that in order to properly drain or otherwise maintain the county roads and road right-of-way it is necessary to install culverts, it may install culverts in the right-of-way or perform other maintenance work thereon.

However, the board has no authority to install culverts for the exclusive use of abutting landowners.

In addition, if the board of supervisors finds and determines that in order to properly drain the county roads and road right-of-way the construction of a certain ditch is necessary, it may acquire a drainage easement from a landowner and cut a ditch a reasonable distance across his land in order to provide sufficient drainage of the road and road right-of-way.

It is cautioned that the construction of such a ditch is authorized only if its purpose is to drain the county roads and road right-of-way. A ditch constructed on private property for the exclusive use and benefit of the landowner is prohibited.

Digging Graves

The boards of supervisors are only authorized by law to pay for the burial of paupers and strangers found dead in their respective counties. There is no legal authority for the boards of supervisors to dig graves with county equipment and labor for the solvent residents of their respective counties.

Specifically, the following statutes apply:
Section 43-31-27:

"The members of the board of supervisors shall prevent the poor from strolling from one district to another; and in case any pauper shall leave the county in which he may have a settlement, and remove to another county, any member of the board of supervisors may make an order to remove the pauper back to the county from which he came, directed to any constable to execute."

"But if the pauper be sick or disabled so that he cannot be removed, he shall be provided for in the county in which he may be found until he can be removed; and the county in which he has a legal settlement shall pay all charges occasioned by the support of the pauper and for removal, or burial in case of death, which shall constitute a charge against the county, and may be recoverable by action before the proper court."

"And it shall be the duty of the board of supervisors of the county to which any pauper belongs, to receive him, on his removal, and provide for him as in other cases."

Section 43-31-29:

"The boards of supervisors shall also relieve, support or employ paupers found or being in the county, though not entitled to a settlement therein, and, in case of their decease, shall decently bury them; and all expenses shall be chargeable to and recoverable from the county in which such pauper had a settlement; and the board shall decently bury all strangers dying in the county."

Section 43-31-31:

"The municipal authorities of every city, town, and village, shall bury all strangers found dead within their limits or found floating in any waters at a point adjoining their limits, and all expenses or charges shall be chargeable to the county; and an accurate account thereof shall be reported to the board of supervisors, who shall allow the same, and order it to be paid out of the county treasury; but the boards of supervisors may fix maximum charges for such burials."

Circuit Court clears 18 cases in two weeks

Hancock County Circuit Court, in the first two weeks of its four-week January term, has disposed of 14 criminal cases and four civil cases.

Judge J. Ruble Griffin and John Thomas divided responsibilities on the bench during the first two weeks, and Griffin is presiding this week.

The following sentences were handed down in the criminal cases:

—Charges of possession of marijuana against Calvin Blake of Bay St. Louis were dropped after Griffin approved his attorney's motion to suppress evidence obtained from a search without a warrant by the Hancock County Sheriff's Department.

The officers had a warrant to search two houses, but not the mobile home in which the evidence against Blake was allegedly obtained.

—Ronald (Buster) Brown, 30, of Kiln, after pleading guilty to two counts of forgery, received a five-year penitentiary sentence, four years of which were suspended.

Upon his release, under the terms of the court's order, Brown is to make restitution of $36 and pay the county $350 for the services of the public defender plus court costs.

—Alechie A. Lindsay, Waveland, received three-year concurrent sentences, with two years suspended after pleading guilty to two counts of shoplifting.

—William Gillespie, Bay St. Louis, received a total sentence of 10 years, suspended with four years' probation, was ordered to pay court costs and perform work for the sheriff after he pleaded guilty to three counts of burglary and one of robbery by assault.

—Robert Mitchell Jr. of Waveland pleaded guilty to two counts of burglary and was sentenced to seven years on each count, to run concurrently.

Under the judge's order, he is to be placed in the drug and alcohol rehabilitation program in the penitentiary.

—Robert C. Poyadon of Waveland, after pleading guilty to receiving stolen property, was sentenced to three years in the penitentiary, also in the drug and alcohol rehabilitation program.

—Gerald Rocker, 26, of New Orleans and Ronnie Hicks, 23, of Bay St. Louis both pleaded guilty to stealing a bank bag containing $250 from Furniture Liquidators in Bay St. Louis last May 9.

Each received an 18-month penitentiary sentence. Rocker's sentence was added to the five-year sentence he is now serving at Parchman on a car theft conviction.

—Scott A. Irons, who appealed a Waveland city Court conviction for driving under the influence of alcohol, had the charge reduced to reckless driving and was ordered to pay a $100 fine.

Tyrone Whavers, 22, of Bay St. Louis received a three-year suspended sentence with three years' probation, a $500 fine and restitution of $10 to the Bay St. Louis Police Department after he pleaded guilty to selling 10 marijuana cigarettes to an undercover officer.

—Wayne Benoit, 19, Bay St. Louis, received the same sentence as Whavers, with $5 restitution to the police department after he pleaded guilty to selling five marijuana cigarettes to an undercover officer.

—Robert J. Smith, 63, Bay St. Louis, pleaded guilty to selling $100-worth of cocaine to an undercover policeman.

He received a 10-year suspended sentence with three years' probation and was ordered to pay a $1,000 fine and $100 restitution to the police department.

Under the terms of his probation and that of Whavers, the two men are to discontinue living together.

—Kris M. Gunderson, 21, of Bay St. Louis, pleaded guilty to theft of a pistol and a jacket. He received a five-year suspended sentence with three years' probation and ordered to pay court costs.

—David Barras, 24, of Biloxi pleaded guilty to prescription forgery and was given a two-year suspended sentence with two years' probation and ordered to pay $350 for the public defender's services and court costs.

Jury verdicts in three civil cases included:

—A jury found in favor of Mark Blackledge in a suit brought against him by John T. Hammond, who charged that Blackledge failed to perform properly the work on the construction of his Shoreline Park home in November 1982.

The jury's verdict included a recommendation that Blackledge be paid the balance of his unpaid bill, but that recommendation was ruled improper by Griffin.

—Halter Marine was ordered to reimburse Irving Lacoste of Kiln $36,000, the sum he paid for a boat which he charged in his suit to be defective. Lacoste's original suit asked for damages totaling $69,025.

—Henry Lawson and Bruce Morreale sued each other for damages resulting from an automobile collision in the Choctaw Plaza parking lot on Thanksgiving Day 1982.

The jury ruled that neither was entitled to damages. The court assessed each side in the suit half of the court costs.

In a non-jury action, the court dismissed "with prejudice" a suit brought by Rodney O. (Ronnie) Gonzales against Kmart Auto Center and its mechanic, George Reid.

In October, following a hearing on the case which Kmart and Reid had not answered, the court ordered that Reid, the only one to be served a subpoena, pay $70,000 and court costs to Gonzales.

The case involved Gonzales' charge of false arrest last July on a shoplifting charge, which arose out of a misunderstanding between Gonzales and his employee, each believing the other had paid for the battery they took from the store.

Gonzales testified that when the store notified him that the battery was not paid for, he went on three occasions to pay the bill, with his money rejected each time either because he did not have the original sales slip or the manager was not present.

After the third trip to the store, he was arrested by Waveland Police on a shoplifting charge filed by Kmart, he said.

Later negotiations between attorneys for the two parties resulted in a settlement of $20,000 paid to Gonzales, who said he felt the firm also owed him a public apology.

His original suit asked $200,000 in punitive damages. The January court action canceled the judgment against Reid and dismissed the charge against Kmart Auto Center, assessing costs of the case to Kmart.

Flu

Nearly 25 percent of the school's 530 students stayed home Tuesday, more than double the number who were out sick in early January. Eight of the 26 teachers also are sick, as are two of the schools' three maintenance men, Finney said.

Dr. Louise McFarland, chief of epidemiology for the state Health Department, said the outbreak might be more widespread among children because adults have probably been exposed to the virus before and their bodies have some immunity to it.

No other schools announced plans to close, but higher-than-usual absenteeism was reported Tuesday in St. Tammany, St. Charles and Orleans parishes.

Orleans Parish School Board spokeswoman Kathy Behrman said 230 substitute teachers were sent out Monday — 100 more than usual for a January day, she said.

In St. Charles Parish, about 10 percent of the public school students were absent Monday and Tuesday, an improvement from 15 percent last week, said Henry Fox, supervisor of child welfare for the School Board.

The situation was similar in St. Tammany Parish, where more children than usual stayed home. But this week's absenteeism was lower than the 15 to 20 percent reported last week, officials said.

"They're coming back to school, but slowly," said Dinah Safcak, secretary of Mandeville Junior High School, where absences are three times as high as usual, down from six times as high last week.

Elsewhere, students appeared to have been largely spared, with absences in St. Bernard, Jefferson and St. John the Baptist parishes running no higher than normal, school officials said. Officials in Plaquemines Parish could not be reached Tuesday.

The state Health Department suspects that the English strain of Type A influenza is causing much of the outbreak, but several other flu-like viruses now making the rounds are being confused with influenza, McFarland said.

Cooperative effort saves Forget-Me-Not

By WAYNE DUCOMB JR.

A cooperative effort by a government agency, a local organization and the City of Waveland will allow the Forget-Me-Not senior citizen craft outlet in that city to remain open.

The Waveland Board of Aldermen at a special meeting Tuesday night agreed to join the South Mississippi Planning and Development District Aging Division in Gulfport, and the Hancock County Retired Senior Volunteer Program in Bay St. Louis in supporting the shop.

The meeting was originally scheduled tonight, but Mayor John Longo of Waveland explained Monday that the meeting date was changed due to schedule conflicts.

Jane Kennedy, SMPDD Aging Division director, explained Wednesday that Waveland will continue paying for a coffee service and utilities for the US-90 shop.

Beginning Feb. 1, RSVP will become sponsor of the shop in which the organization will be responsible for managing the facility, maintaining records of all transactions and continue providing its members on a voluntary basis to help staff the shop, she said.

Also on that date, the SMPDD Aging Division will provide one part-time clerk to allow the shop to maintain regular hours, Kennedy reported.

The Forget-Me-Not was founded and sponsored by the SMPDD Senior Aides Program, but due to the profitable success of the outlet and new requirements imposed by the National Council of Senior Citizens, the aides can no longer operate the shop, she said.

The council oversees the senior aide program which provides training and employment for person 55 years and older, Kennedy noted.

It is also one of eight U.S. Department of Labor contractors which provide services for senior citizens through local sponsors such as SMPDD, she said.

The aging division is under the guidance of the Mississippi Council on Aging which provides similar services, but is not restricted from participating in a profit-making venture as Senior Aides now is, Kennedy said.

Frances Adkins, the program director, has appeared at several recent aldermen meetings requesting the city assume some sort of increased financial responsibility for the shop because the national council is requiring Senior Aides to divest themselves of five outlets it operates along the Mississippi Gulf Coast, including Forget-Me-Not, by Jan. 31.

Adkins said at a previous Waveland meeting that the federal government would require Senior Aides to return consigned merchandise to the craftsmen if a smooth transition to another sponsoring agency were not possible.

But Theresa James, RSVP director, stated Wednesday, "It's requested that all consignors remit their old consignor tickets and they will be issued new tickets from RSVP."

She emphasized that consignors should not begin remitting their tickets until Feb. 1 when the shop is turned over to RSVP.

Kennedy said her assistant, Mike Turner, will also send a letter to all store consignors informing them that RSVP is the new sponsor and there is no need for them to remove their handicrafts from the shop.

Adkins had suggested the Forget-Me-Not become part of a non-profit corporation now being formed to operate the Toll House Craft Shop which senior aides has also operated.

But she said the corporation would require a $10 annual consignor fee and increase item markups from 10 to 20 percent.

Kennedy said the new agreement for Forget-Me-Not will allow the store to maintain its present marketing scheme which includes no consignor fee and a 10 percent markup.

"The aging council is concerned with the needs of older persons. We don't consider the marketing of goods as a prime need... It (the store) creates an opportunity for these people to utilize their creativity and artistic talent," she stated.

"With this store restricted to only accepting items made by older persons, it keeps the store out of competition with the private sector and gives an identity to these people as a part of the community and their efforts are applauded," Kennedy said.

Hancock auxiliary deputy numbers increased, responsibilities added

By ELLIS CUEVAS

Some 40 men and women attended a recent re-organization meeting of Hancock County Sheriff's Department auxiliary deputies, according to Lee Klein, spokesman for the group.

Sheriff Ronald Peterson noted during the past four years auxiliary deputies have "rendered a vital service to our department."

"Fifteen or 20 auxiliary deputies have been serving on a regular basis, and we hope to double that number," the sheriff pointed out.

Under the new organization, Eddie Jennings will serve as chief; David Garcia, assistant chief; and Gloria Tartavouille, secretary.

Training officers are Klein, Jennings, and Garcia.

Garcia is a regular deputy and Tartavouille is secretary of the sheriff's office.

"Auxiliary deputies are normally non-paid officers who assist regular deputies in patrolling and crowd control," Peterson stated.

The sheriff continued, "Auxiliary officers attend many training sessions, and are required to work a certain number of hours a month. The training includes the pistol range and all phases of law enforcement."

The Auxiliary Deputies is a working group composed of persons willing to donate their time to the county.

Membership is open to men and women who are bonafide citizens of the county, at least 21 years of age with no record of conviction.

Each candidate is screened by the sheriff's department.

Last Saturday 12 persons given weekend public service convictions by judges collected litter on the highway with an auxiliary deputy in charge, Klein reported.

"Most persons convicted under the new DUI law are sentenced to perform community service on Saturdays and Sundays in an effort to relieve overcrowding in the county jail and to avoid undue hardships on families," Klein added.

"The number of DUI convictions has increased, and there was a need for someone to be in charge of those serving such weekend sentences, and that is one area where the Hancock County auxiliary deputies are going to help," Klein allowed.

Klein said those sentenced to weekend sentences will also work throughout the county on community related projects.

Any person needing help with a community related project can contact Klein at 467-5887; or Garcia, Jennings or Tartavouille at the sheriff's office, 467-5101.

Peterson emphasized, "Workers with the weekend community service sentences will be used on community projects only."

The weekend projects will be scheduled the Friday before on a priority basis, Klein stated.

"I feel the auxiliary deputies have been an asset to our county and will be more so with the additional programs being added," Peterson said.

Jay Bee Cunningham's trial reset for Monday

By NAN PATTON EHRBRIGHT

Because the state's material witness incident involving armed robbery, kidnapping and rape which allegedly took place in a three-county area—Hancock, Harrison and Jackson.

The rape, Alfonso said, occurred in Harrison County and the trial here is for armed robbery and kidnapping only.

Cunningham, 28, of New Orleans, is currently serving a life sentence for rape.

While he was appealing that conviction, he and three other prisoners escaped from the Hancock County jail Oct. 21.

He was apprehended by Sheriff's Department officials several days later.

Two state witnesses were also unavailable Tuesday for the arson trial of Danny Perrott of Bay St. Louis, also represented by William Frisbie.

Stating that he did not feel that defendant had been harmed in any way by delays, Griffin continued Perrott's trial until the April term.

In other matters this week the court: —Ordered Adrian J. Soulagnot of,

New Orleans, who earlier pled guilty to possession of a controlled substance, to bring payments current on his $3,000 fine and to continue community service under the supervision of the Waveland Police Department until he has completed 228 hours;

—Continued to the April term the trial of William Barrett, Pass Christian, on charges of prescription forgery; —Suspended five-year concurrent sentences for Mike Stringer of Shoreline Park on guilty pleas for grand larceny and receiving stolen goods and ordered him to make $50 monthly payments for $350 reimbursement to the county for attorney fees plus his proportionate share of court costs.

In a civil suit against Gonzales Marine Inc., a jury brought in a unanimous verdict awarding $75,000 to Mark Thomas of Pass Christian.

Thomas had asked for $567,112 in damages resulting from his being fired by the company after being accused of stealing a light.

He testified that after he was fired, he was completely out of work for six weeks, and then worked for almost two years earning about two-thirds of what he had earned at Gonzales Marine.

Also, he claimed, his name and reputation in the community were damaged when he was "branded a thief."

Thomas' attorney, Henry Cook, says he has been told by several attorneys that the $75,000 verdict is the largest ever awarded in Hancock County.

Defense attorney Stanford Morse said the case will be appealed.

ETV Brief

THE GOOD LIFE

"The Irish R.M.," a whimsical comedy in true British style, is the next entry in the "Masterpiece Theatre" series on Mississippi ETV.

Peter Bowles stars as Maj. Sinclair Yeates, who hopes to find the good life as an R.M. (Resident Magistrate) in the west of Ireland, at 9 p.m., Sundays beginning Jan. 29 on ETV.

He soon discovers that nothing in Ireland, at least to the British, is what it seems. His house leaks, his chimney smokes, his whiskey vanishes and his efforts to prepare the house for his fiancée are constantly thwarted by the antics of his impish landlord.

The six-part series was described by one British critic as "an affectionate canter through the mists of mutual noncomprehension which have defogged Anglo-Irish relations since St. Peter was laid."

OFF-BROADWAY

A television adaptation of Sam Shepard's current off-Broadway hit, "True West," will be presented on "American Playhouse" at 8 p.m., Tuesday, Jan. 31 on the Mississippi ETV Network.

The two-hour comedy/drama stars the Obie-winning John Malkovich and Gary Sinise, who starred in the successful off-Broadway production.

"True West" is set in a rural California community about 40 miles outside of Los Angeles. It focuses on the relationship between two brothers: one, a fairly successful screenwriter, and the other, a down-and-out scurvy desert rat and burglar.

All of the action takes place in the small house owned by the men's mother, who is out of town. It is the sometimes-hilarious, sometimes-terrifying story of their slow but inevitable reversal of roles after the shady brother "sells" an old-fashioned western script idea to a Hollywood producer and then tries to induce his more talented brother into writing the screenplay.

The "American Playhouse" Shepard's first television presentation represents adaptation of one of his works.

NEW USM EQUIPMENT—Workmen at the University of Southern Mississippi assemble the new graphic design tables to be used in the School of Communication. The desks will enable students in journalism and advertising classes to complete more work under the supervision of a professor.

USM updates classrooms for journalism students

Two classrooms in Southern Hall at the University of Southern Mississippi are being converted into one room especially equipped to fit the needs of design typography and advertising students.

The room, containing 25 graphic design tables with lockable drawers, chairs and three light tables, will be ready for spring semester classes.

Students can now complete assignments under the supervision of an instructor.

"We can have a lot more practice sessions and instructors can give a lot more help to students," said Dr. Birthney Ardo, chairman of the Department of Journalism.

"This is something we have been trying to get for many years. A properly equipped classroom for design courses was recommended by an outside authority to meet accreditation standards of the Council for Education in Journalism and Mass Communication."

The new classroom is a direct result of the establishment of the School of Communication as one of the university's three centers of excellence.

In the fall a communication reference center was established in another converted classroom to allow undergraduates and graduate students access to a great deal of reference material, according to Dr. Gene Wiggins, director of the school.

The reference center offers newspapers, periodicals and books for students doing research in the three departments of the School of Communication—radio television and film, journalism and speech communication.

Shanker addresses reform conference

Members of the Mississippi American Federation of Teachers joined delegates from Alabama, Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, Louisiana, North Carolina, Oklahoma, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas, Virginia, West Virginia, Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands at an education reform conference in New Orleans Jan. 13 through 15.

The conference, "Meeting the Challenge of Education Reform," fourth in a series sponsored by the American Federation of Teachers (AFT), drew teachers, union leaders, politicians and other educators together for three days of meetings on current education topics.

Keynote speaker was Albert Shanker, president of the 800,000-member AFT.

He urged the assembly to open channels of communication with elected officials, parents and community leaders to garner support for needed reforms in education.

He reviewed AFT's leadership role in the movement for tough curriculum and professional standards.

"We've been asking for these reforms for years," said Shanker, detailing points on accountability, merit pay and teacher training.

With the exception of three main addresses, the bulk of the conference focused on small group interaction sessions where teachers studied and analyzed critical reform issues including teacher evaluation, educational leadership at the school level, teacher recruitment and early career incentives, teacher preparation, student discipline, curriculum and academic standards, legislative strategy and public relations.

SAVE TAX DOLLARS WHILE THERE'S STILL TIME.

Even as you read this message, time is ticking away toward April 15. But Hancock Bank has a plan that can help you cut the taxes you'll pay this year and provide for your retirement.

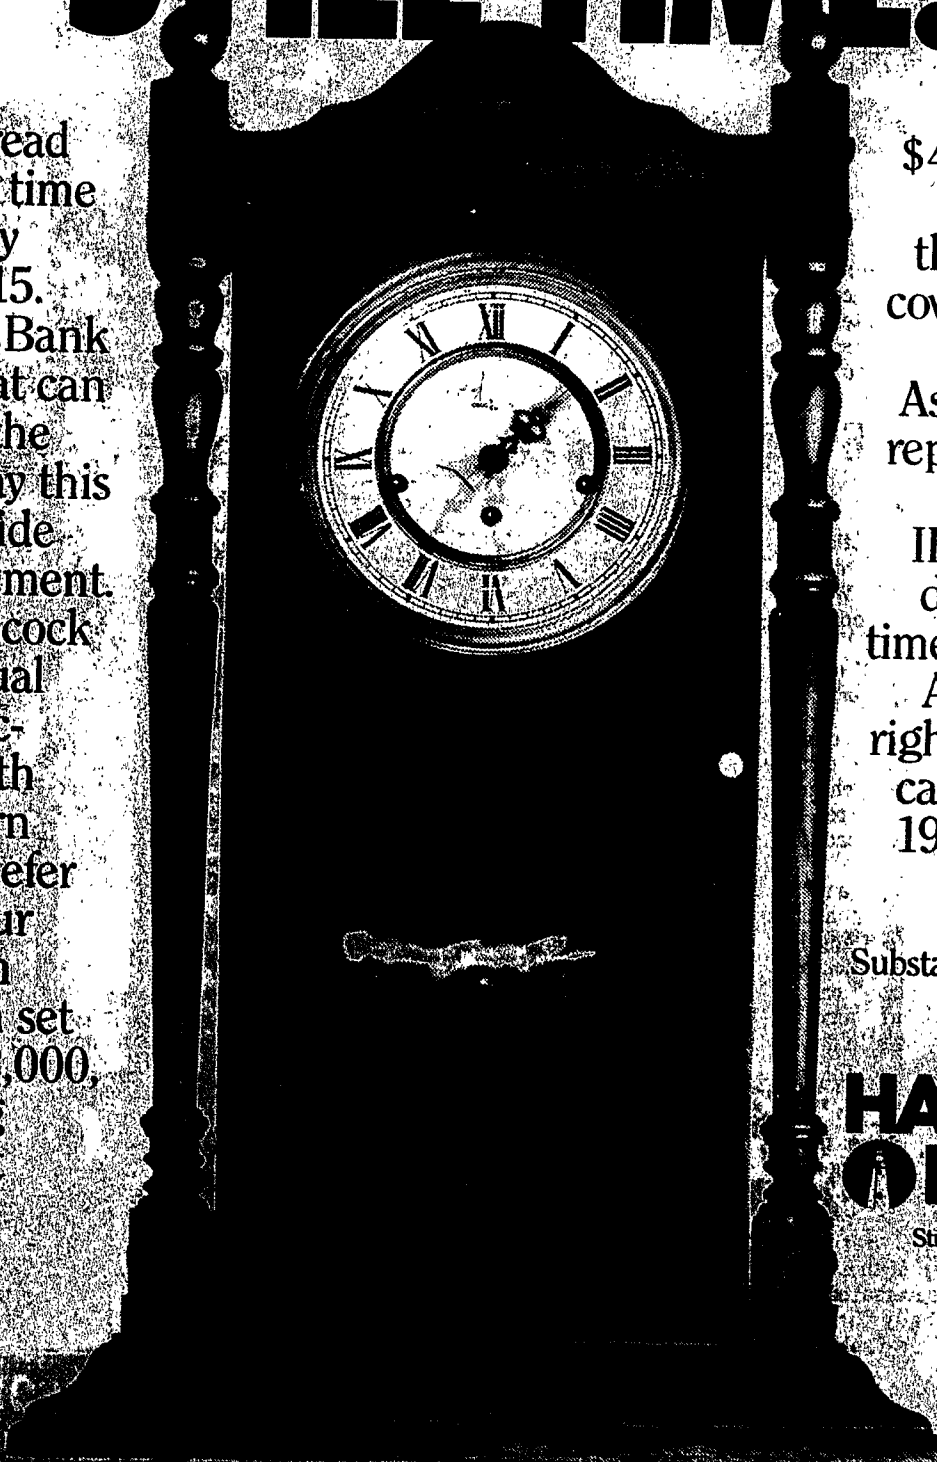

It's the Hancock Bank Individual Retirement Account, and with it you can earn interest and defer taxes until your retirement. An individual can set aside up to $2,000, and a working couple can set aside up to $4,000... tax free!

And you can do this even if you're covered by another pension plan. Ask your Hancock representative how an easy-to-open IRA can delay tax day. But hurry... time is running out! And don't forget: right now, your IRA can be eligible for 1983 tax benefits.

Macaroni stretches budget, adds nutrition to meals

By Ann O. Rushing
Extension Marketing
Specialist

Macaroni foods are fine budget stretchers because they help extend more expensive foods. They are also nutritional "extenders" that provide important energy and vegetable protein.

When combined with small amounts of meat, eggs, cheese or fish, they provide appetizing, economical and nourishing main dishes for a pleasant change after rich holiday foods.

Best quality macaroni products (spaghetti, macaroni, noodles) are made from Durum wheat. This is a spring wheat grown chiefly in Minnesota, Montana and the Dakotas, and is relatively high in protein and low in starch.

When milled, Durum breaks into granules about the size of a grain of salt. This granular substance is called semolina.

In making macaroni foods, water is mixed with semolina to make a stiff dough. After all the ingredients are blended, the dough is extruded into the desired shapes and lengths, and the macaroni foods are dried, baked.

The amber color of the macaroni is reflected in the rich cream color of the finished products, which are hard and brittle.

Noodles are made from the same mixture of semolina and water, but differ from their macaroni cousins in that they contain egg yolks.

Vegetables such as spinach, tomatoes, beets, carrots or parsley may be added to macaroni products. The name of the vegetable is included in the name of the product. Spinach egg noodles are an example.

Macaroni foods are enriched with iron and B vitamins. Enriched products are labeled "enriched" and the amounts listed on the label.

Macaroni and noodles are made in many different and exciting shapes. In fact, these good foods are available in more than 100 different shapes. The market has a large variety of shapes and sizes, and a visit to an Italian restaurant or grocery store will acquaint you with many more interesting variations.

Macaroni is generally short and tubular. Spaghetti and angel hair are longer and rod-shaped. Noodles are flat and ribbon-like, formed into ribbons.

Macaroni has the elbows and shells, and there are shells, stars, alphabets, spirals, corkscrews, little pipes and turbanes. There are straight ribbons and curly ribbons, fine noodles, medium noodles and wide noodles.

Macaroni is a popular food these days. It looks somewhat like a broad noodle, but contains no egg. Vermicelli is a thinner version of spaghetti. Glamorous shapes usually cost a little more than the usual shapes, but the extra eye appeal may sometimes justify the extra cost.

Generally speaking, all macaroni foods may be used interchangeably. Just substitute them weight for weight.

The small shapes are best in soup and the larger varieties have a better appearance with sauce. Some shapes are particularly suited for holding sauce. Others can be stuffed with a meat or cheese mixture.

All of the macaroni products will almost double in volume when cooked. One ounce of uncooked macaroni makes an average serving, but many prefer to cook an ounce and a half per person to allow for "seconds." Families with teen agers should allow about two ounces uncooked macaroni per serving.

Some like macaroni products rather chewy and firm. Others like them quite tender. There is one don't—never overcook to a soft, mushy stage.

Macaroni, spaghetti or noodles are done when a piece pressed gently with a spoon against the side of the pan cuts cleanly. Follow the general cooking directions on the manufacturer's package. Cooking time varies with the product.

Give the budget a boost with macaroni products.

Annual Stanislaus alumni reunion slated Saturday

The St. Stanislaus Alumni Association will hold its annual alumni reunion Saturday. This 'alumni get-together' will take place at the Jefferson-Orleans in Metairie, La. starting at 7:30 p.m. Many of the Brothers of the Sacred Heart and faculty members who have taught at St. Stanislaus High School in Bay St. Louis in the past will be in attendance.

This year the alumni association will honor five classes including those class members celebrating a 10-year period since their graduation (classes of '44, '54, '64 and '74) and the class celebrating its 25-year of graduation (class of 1959).

Certificates recognizing the time since their graduation will be given to those alumni of the 'honor classes' who are in attendance.

This alumni reunion is open to all alumni of St. Stanislaus and their wives or dates. Reservations may be made in advance through the Alumni Office at St. Stanislaus.

FISH KILL—Recent freezing weather has caused fish kills in the bayous and canals off Jourdan River in Hancock County. This group of mullet surfaced in a canal near Bayou LaCrosse. Local fishermen are concerned with the number of fish killed this year. Sylvan J. Ladner Jr., who took this photo, says he saw thousands of dead fish in the bayous and canals.

Sailfish, among the fastest of all creatures, have been known to swim 68 miles per hour.

Local grididders get only one of five PRC scholarships

Pearl River College has signed two football players from Alabama, two from Louisiana but only one district player to scholarships for the 1984 season.

J. C. Arban, the Wildcats' head coach, said Charles Swain, a 6'3-235 pound defensive tackle from Leeds High School in Birmingham and center Wes Crayton (6'2-210) from Decatur, Ala. have inked with the Wildcats.

The Louisiana players Arban has signed include offensive tackle Buster Stewart (6'1-270) of Bogalusa, and center-tackle Clint Husser (6'3-238) of Bowling Green Academy in Franklinton.

The only district player signed by Arban at this time is David McIvor a 6'2-200 pound linebacker from Bay St. Louis.

Arban said he has 21 players returning from last year's squad which posted a 4-5-1 ledger. At this time the next year's sophomores and 18 walk-ons are running and working out with weights. Spring practice began this week.

Seven players from last year's squad have signed scholarships to play for other colleges next fall. Petal linebacker Tommy Hillman signed with Mississippi College; Clay Squires, a nose guard from Satsuma, Ala. signed with Mississippi College; Richard Hathorn, a defensive tackle from Basfield signed with West Virginia State; Kevin Russell, offensive guard from East Marion signed with Southeastern La.; Scott Senner, punter-fullback from St. Stanislaus also signed with Southeastern; Mike Horn a defensive tackle from New Orleans has signed with Tulane and Benji Kidd a cornerback from Hattiesburg has signed with Mississippi College.

Soccer clinic scheduled

MYSA has announced that the Recreational Championship will be held on May 5-6, at Starkville, the State Division Tournament (requiring a bond) will be held on May 12-13 and the Regional Championships will be held on June 7-10 in Tampa, Fla.

All youth interested in playing soccer this spring for BAYS and who have not yet registered are reminded to pick up their registration forms from Paul Montjoy (Gulf Coast Waste), Dr. LeBourgeois (Waveland Small Animal Hospital) or Kathy Edwards (Wine Seller). There are still openings on teams in all age groups.

NASSP study recommends restructuring high schools

While America has now reached its dream of universal education, a new national study will recommend that it's time to 'restructure' high schools.

That will be one of the main recommendations in Ted Sizer's Study of the High School, which will be presented in a book to be published this month.

Sizer's study is being sponsored by the National Association of Secondary School Principals (NASSP) and the Commission on Educational Issues of the National Association of Independent Schools.

"The extent of free high school education in this country is astonishing," reports Sizer, former dean of education at Harvard University.

"The crusade for universal secondary education, envisioned almost 100 years ago, is now a reality. The American high school may be this century's most far-reaching and generous social invention." "Unfortunately," he adds, "despite well-intentioned, sincere efforts, many schools are not uniformly productive and serve some of their students poorly."

Sizer calls for a substantial restructuring of the high school and believes the present structure is the root cause of schools' weak productivity. "Big and politically risky though that task is, it is about time that we tackle it," continues Sizer. "The current high school structure dates back to, and arises from, the beliefs of the 1890s. We've learned much and changed much since then, and we can do better than continuing to operate a school designed when Henry Ford's Model T was new."

He believes that students should be the 'key workers' in schools because only they can do the learning. "We must stop thinking of ways to 'give' or 'present' material to kids and explore how we can inspire them to get it for themselves," Sizer contends.

Sizer offers several principles by which high schools can be structured:

- No one should enter high school-level studies who has not clearly mastered the basic educational requirements of a citizen in a democracy—literacy, numeracy and civic understanding.

- The high school should focus on helping adolescents to learn to use their minds.
- The tone of the high school should be one of unanxious expectation.
- The diploma should be awarded only upon a student's exhibition of mastery of the high school's program.

- The program of study must be simple and universal.
- Teaching and learning must be personalized to the greatest extent possible.
- Control of the detailed school program must be given to the principal and teachers at each school.

Bay schools continue efforts to identify handicapped

Superintendent J.D. McCulloch says the Bay St. Louis Municipal Separate School District is participating in an ongoing statewide effort to identify, locate and evaluate children under the age of 21 who are physically, mentally, communicatively, hearing, visually or emotionally handicapped. Early identification of children who need special educational experiences is most important, according to Special Education Supervisor Betty Ashe.

The information will also be used to help determine present and future program needs as progress is made toward the goal of providing a free appropriate public education to all handicapped children, Ashe said.

The district has been providing free appropriate public educational programs for handicapped children aged six through 20 since Sept. 1, 1980 and will provide programs for handicapped aged 21, by the year 2000, Ashe said.

Information which could identify an individual child will be maintained by the school district and will be provided to other agencies only in accordance with the Family Rights and Privacy Act, she said.

Parents are guaranteed the right to inspect any such information about their children and to challenge its accuracy. Access to this information is forbidden to any authorized person without parental consent.

Parents who have questions regarding the collection and maintenance of data about their children should contact the Department of Special Education by calling 467-1021 or by writing to Department of Special Education, Bay Senior High School, Blue Meadow Road, Bay St. Louis 39520.

Power company lists city taxes paid

Mississippi Power Company's Bay St. Louis local manager, Ben Benvenuti, reports the utility has paid the city of Bay St. Louis $35,387 and the city of Waveland $18,042 in franchise fees for the fourth quarter of 1983. Benvenuti said the payments by Mississippi

Power Company are used by the cities to help pay for community services such as police and fire protection, education, streets and recreation.

The franchise payments are based on three percent of the Gulfport-based utility's revenues received from the sale of electricity to its retail customers in municipalities.

Because Mississippi Power Company recently gained final approval to collect 47 percent of its 1980 rate request, municipalities will receive additional money in their fourth quarter payments.

This additional payment will represent three percent of all revenues collected by Mississippi Power Company under the new rates from November 1980 to May 1982.

Mississippi Power Company's fourth quarter payment brings the franchise fee total for 1983 to $94,271 for Bay St. Louis and $53,566 for Waveland.

Mississippi Power Company pays a franchise fee to 52 municipalities in its 23-county service area in southeast Mississippi. The utility has paid more than $6.3 million in franchise funds to these towns and communities during 1983.

Sergeants Samuel W. Jellison of Bay St. Louis and Thomas W. Favre and Louis R. James, both of Pass Christian, are among Mississippi Army National Guard non-commissioned officers who completed a recent Advanced Non-Commissioned Officers Academy at Camp Shelby.

LT COL Glenn Ryan of Biloxi, commander of the 138th Supply and Service Battalion, of which the NCOs are members, said the trio 'distinguished themselves and their unit and are a credit to their country and community.'

THAT NAGGING BACK
Backaches are one of the most common complaints of the American people. We find the average patient is quite convinced their backache is due to some strained muscle or internal trouble. Some patients of course, relate it directly to an injury or fall they may have sustained in the past. There are many different causes of back pain and surgery is not always necessary. In most cases, it can be avoided if the patient is made aware of conservative Chiropractic care. A complete Chiropractic examination will pin point the exact cause of the back problem, along with the extent of the damage. In the majority of these cases, Chiropractic offers the most effective and safest approach to the problem of backaches. Research points out that as high as 8 out of 10 people can avoid surgery if they are cared for in time by a doctor of Chiropractic.

Clement Stephen (Steve) Benvenuti

Clement Stephen BENVENUTTI House Of Representative Post 122

I believe the people of our county and state are looking for new faces and ideas. That we need representation which is not tied to any special interests or groups, but is responsive to the needs of all our people. That our position at the bottom of nearly every socio-economic category is not deserved or necessary, but the result of powerful resistance to necessary change, reform and new ideas. We can continue to experience the problems and mistakes of our past or we can strive for change and a better future — the choice is ours.

I will provide all the citizens of our District 122 with energetic, honest and responsive representation. My roots, education, and active interest in the problems and progress of our County provide me with the ability to represent all the people of our County and to be responsive to their needs.

BRING BACK THE CHALLENGE.

Sometimes what you miss most from your service experience is the challenge to your physical and mental ability. A good way to renew that is in the Army Reserve, one weekend a month (usually two 8-hour days) and two weeks summer training a year. For instance, an E-5 with four years' experience can earn $1922 a year to start. Accept the challenge. Call your Army Reserve representative in the Yellow Pages under "Recruiting."

Molpus outlines plans for reorganization

In an effort to forge a more effective operation, newly elected Secretary of State Dick Molpus reports the reorganization of the Secretary of State's office into four streamlined departments.

He named four Mississippians to head those departments starting Jan. 5.

The four departments will include administration, securities, public lands, and policy development.

Molpus, who undertook this reorganization after study of the office, said, "The purpose of this reorganization is to serve the people of Mississippi more capably and promptly. It is also designed to better enable me to develop innovative and common sense approaches to the issues which this office will be called on to handle in the coming years."

Molpus noted that the Department of Administration will handle what was formerly the corporations, UCC, notary public, and accounting and personnel functions of the office.

The Securities Department will supervise the sales of stocks, bonds, debentures, limited partnerships and other securities.

The third department, Public Lands, will oversee and manage 1,500,000 acres of state-owned lands including sixteen section land set aside for public education.

Finally, the Department of Policy Development will assume the responsibility of staff work on education, legislation, and elections, as well as serving as liaison to many of the boards and commissions on which the secretary of state serves.

Serving as assistant secretary of state for administration will be Ann Homer Cook. Mrs. Cook, 38, is a native of Shelby and a graduate of Delta State University who has worked in state government for ten years.

From 1977 to 1980 she served as Chief of Classification and Compensation of the State Personnel Board.

In 1980 under Molpus' guidance she reorganized the Department of Administration within the Governor's Office of Federal-State Programs.

Upon Molpus' resignation in May 1983 as director of Federal-State Programs, Mrs. Cook became the director of that agency.

Assistant secretary of state for securities will be Peyton Prosperi.

Prosperi, 32, is a native of Greenville and a graduate of Davidson College and the University of Mississippi School of Law.

Since 1979 Prosperi has been associated with the law firm of Watkins, Ludlam and Stennis.

He has specialized in municipal law and finance.

The new assistant secretary of state for public lands will be Constance Slaughter-Harvey. Mrs. Slaughter-Harvey, 37, is a native of Forest and is a graduate of Tougaloo College and the University of Mississippi School of Law.

From 1978 to 1980 she served as director of East Mississippi Legal Services and in 1980 was named director of human development within the Governor's Office of Federal-State Programs.

In that position she was responsible for managing several federal programs such as the Mississippi Council on Aging, Law Income Energy, and the Community Services Block Grant.

Serving as assistant secretary of state for policy development will be Rickey Gray.

Gray, 34, is a native of Jackson and a graduate of Millsaps College.

He has a master's degree in planning from the University of Texas.

From 1975 to 1980 he served as a community planner at the Research and Development Center and in 1980 became assistant to the director of the Governor's Office of Planning and Policy in Federal-State Programs.

Historically the office of the secretary of state has been perceived by many as clerical and administrative in nature.

Molpus stated that while the filing of corporate charters and UCC's will continue to be a major component of the secretary of state's office his administration will place "significantly" more emphasis on such critically important roles of the office as education, sixteen section land, securities and elections.

Molpus said that he sees no dramatic changes in personnel that will be needed within the organization. Ray Bailey, a career state employee and director of corporations and UCC filings, will remain in that position within the Department of Administration.

Molpus praised the "fine legacy" left to the secretary of state's office by previous secretaries and complimented current Secretary Ed Pittman on his "splendid cooperation" during the transition period.

Land use expert predicts shortages

By Dr. Bob Chapin
Coordinator
Land Use Center
Mississippi
Cooperative
Extension Service

With many farmers on the edge of bankruptcy, it is difficult to convince people that now is the time to buy a farm.

Growing world populations can in the next 16 years seriously strain our food, fiber and nonrenewable resources.

To allow our soil to erode annually at more than five tons per acre is a slow form of suicide.

Consuming nonrenewable resources without recycling is encouraging chaos. Leaving much of our forest half planted and unmanaged is pitiful.

In 1970, three billion people worldwide used nine billion acres of land. In 1983, 4.7 billion people used 13 billion acres of land.

With six billion people or more by about 1999, we will need nearly 17 billion acres of land. This is serious, because the world has only 22 billion acres of farmable land.

The only reasonable long-range objectives are conservation, wise land use and replacement population.

Locally, these land-population figures mean we should produce only what is required to fill the need next year.

Over-production leads to bankruptcy.

In the case of timber, a 25-to-50 year crop, all forest land should be fully stocked as soon as possible, because in the next 16 years we will need to harvest double what we do now off less forest land.

Forests are declining at an estimated rate of 20,000 acres per year. Only 15 million acres of commercial forests are expected to remain by 1997.

Mississippi has 27 million acres in agricultural uses out of 30,540,760 acres.

About 11 million acres of agricultural land is prime land. Some 8.5 million acres are the very best cropland.

More than 432,000 acres of prime land are in urban areas, 3.4 million acres are in forest and 6.8 million acres are in crops and pastureland. This means that only 3.4 million acres now in forest remain to be expanded into crop and pastureland.

Beyond that, increasing production yields is all that can be done to meet increasing world food and fiber needs.

Presently, with addition of massive irrigation, an increase of 8 percent is the most that can be expected with our present technology.

Talladega speedway lists 1984 races

Two new events, sponsorship of an existing event by an old friend, and more than 1 million in prize money will highlight the 1984 racing schedule announced by officials of Alabama International Motor Speedway at Talladega.

In a news conference at the Birmingham Hyatt House, AIMS General Manager Don Naman said the speedway would host a 50-mile International Race of Champions event on July 28, and an American Motorcyclist Association-sanctioned Supercross on March 18 as new events at the Talladega superspeedway.

The IROC race will be the third in a series of four special races in the summer of 1984 that will pit a dozen of the world's top drivers against each other in identically prepared Camaros.

The cars are expected to hit speeds in excess of 190 miles per hour at the 2.66-mile superspeedway.

First on the schedule for 1984 at AIMS is the Talladega Triple Crown Supercross by Honda, one of only three such events sanctioned by AMA in the nation this year. It is the AMA's most crowd-pleasing event, with all of the action taking place in the tri-oval area of the speedway, making the seats under the covered grandstands the prime location for spectators.

These events are, of course, in addition to the traditional NASCAR Winston Cup Grand National races that are run at Talladega: every year, the Winston 500 on May 6th, and the Talladega 500 on July 29th. The popular ARCA 200 will also be run again, on July 26th in conjunction with the IROC event.

Naman also revealed plans for a three-year sponsorship of the ARCA 500 kilometer race on May 6th by Permatex, a name already well-known in racing for their sponsorship of the Permatex 300 in Daytona in the 1960's and 1970's. The race will be known as the Permatex 500.

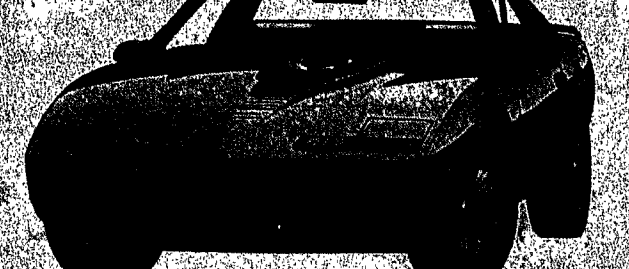

"We are extremely pleased to have Permatex back in racing, and we are happy that they picked Talladega as the focal point for their racing program," said Naman. million mark.

"They have a great tradition of sponsoring races, and a milestone in the history of strong background in racing."

Naman also pointed out that the new events, along with increases in the purses of the Winston 500, the Talladega 500 and the ARCA 200, will boost the total prize money available in events at AIMS to well over one million dollars in 1984. This will be the first time in history that prize money at Talladega has topped the $1 million mark.

Tickets are already on sale for both the Winston 500 and Talladega 500, and will go on sale shortly for the Talladega Supercross.

LECTURER DEMONSTRATES MODEL OF HOVERCRAFT UNDER DEVELOPMENT BY NASA

Frustrated actor 'discovers' himself through singing telegram service

By NAN EHRBRIGHT

The busiest day of the year comes next month for Sidney Smith, owner/originator of Merry Minstrel Singing Telegram Service.

Smith, originally from New Orleans and now a resident of Kiln, says his company delivers more telegrams on Valentine's Day than it usually does in an entire month.

But business is apparently good year round. The company has offices in Baton Rouge and Lafayette, La., Tampa and Orlando, Fla., Indianapolis, Ind. and Birmingham, Ala.

Merry Minstrel began serving southern Mississippi last September.

Smith, who says he's 29 but will soon be 30 and "expects a few telegrams" himself, started the Merry Minstrel business in Baton Rouge in 1977.

His company, he says, was one of the first alternative greeting services to open after Western Union discontinued delivering singing telegrams in the early 1970's.

At least for the present there's a moratorium on new service areas, Smith said.

Although he receives requests from people who want to purchase Merry Minstrel franchises, Smith is reluctant to accede because he insists on "quality control" over the operation.

"When I started I thought Merry Minstrel would be a small business that would pay for itself and not much more," Smith said.

"I planned to be the only messenger, with my wife Delery to answer the telephone and book telegrams."

But the business took off from the very beginning.

"Instead of the 15 to 20 telegrams I expected per week, we were getting 100 or more right off the bat."

"I was working from 5 a.m. to 2 a.m. every day," Smith said.

He had to hire additional staff immediately.

Delery joined the roster to portray a belly-dancer, and became so proficient at that art form that she now dances professionally, he said.

The second and third offices, in Lafayette and Tampa, were opened only two months and five months after the first one.

The Indianapolis offices opened the same year. Openings in Orlando and Birmingham followed a year later.

The number of Merry Minstrel messengers varies according to location and time of year.

"I think today we have five employees serving Mississippi—maybe six," Smith said.

Larger areas have more staff. Orlando has ten to 15 messengers; Tampa has about 20.

The company has grown from one singing messenger in costume to mini-theatrical performances involving groups of messengers.

The regular repertoire includes some 20 different characters and nearly 50 songs, for which Smith composed new gag lyrics for standard popular tunes.

The routine characters include gorillas, 'adult' bunnies, magicians, French maids, dancing cakes, singing hearts, super heroes, fairies, bellydancers, male strippers, clowns and Santa Claus.

And if a character isn't part of Merry Minstrel's repertoire, Smith will create a new one.

"For instance, we performed 'last rites' for a priest who turned 30," Smith said.

"And we had a request once for a jazz funeral for a guy celebrating his 40th birthday."

"We even have a 'no special occasion' telegram," he said. Smith said requests for telegrams are carefully screened.

"We do comedy," he said. "It's kind of like a 'roast.' Our 'victims' are often embarrassed, but we don't do anything vicious or anything in bad taste."

Smith refused, for instance, to deliver an "I hate you" telegram for a woman who wanted to send a message to her husband's girlfriend.

Occasionally one slips by.

Smith said once a man came in with a fake name and paid cash to have a 'goodbye' message delivered to an oil company executive who was leaving the company.

The message was duly delivered at a company dinner at a large exclusive restaurant, but the recipient, it turned out, was not leaving. The sender—an unhappy employee—was simply suggesting that the executive "take a hike," Smith said.

Merry Minstrel delivers its messages anywhere—to homes, offices, restaurants.

"Not too long ago I delivered a telegram to a guy in a manhole," Smith said.

"It was his anniversary, and he and his wife couldn't be together because he was working, and she wanted to send him a message."

But the most effective messages, Smith said, are delivered in a crowd, where everyone can enjoy them.

"The wife of a New Orleans attorney hired us to 'hit' him five times in one week for his 40th birthday," Smith reported.

"One morning I went to his house at 6:30 a.m., watched him come out and catch a bus, followed the bus, got ahead of it and parked, then jumped on the bus to deliver the telegram."

The bus was filled with youngsters on their way to school, Smith said.

Smith finished his performance with the comment, "Now it's time to make my exit."

"I wish I could make mine!" the red-faced attorney responded.

Delivering gag telegrams, Smith said, "is the toughest kind of acting job."

The messenger must be adept at reading a crowd and recognizing what limits he must set for himself.

"He's got to be able to improvise," Smith said.

"Once in a blue moon we have someone who's offended," Smith said, citing an instance last Valentine's Day when he was delivering an "I love you" telegram to a secretary and her boss came in and threw him out of the office.

"And once I had a messenger delivering a telegram to an 11-year-old girl and her father came in and pointed a shotgun at him."

The most difficult telegram to deliver, Smith said, is one where the recipient is unresponsive.

During the Christmas holidays, he said, he was dispatched to a private home with a group of people from Keesler Air Force Base.

"I went into my routine and this 200-pound woman just sat staring at me with a Clint Eastwood cold steel glare."

In the middle of Smith's act the recipient stood up, left the room, walked out to her car, got into it and drove away.

Generally, Merry Minstrel messengers fill a number of different roles.

Costumes, designed by Smith and sewn by several seamstresses, are made in varying sizes to fit different messengers.

Many of the messengers are students, Smith said, and some work full-time at other jobs and deliver telegrams on evenings or weekends.

"One of my messengers is a CPA," Smith said.

"Another has a regular job as a social worker."

All the messengers go through a training period, working with experienced messengers and watching video-tapes of deliveries.

"It's not an easy job," Smith said.

"Maybe 30 to 50 people apply—and one may be good enough." "I guess I have an innate sense of PR," Smith said, "that enables me to read people."

"Sometimes I get a bit frustrated by messengers or employees that don't have the same ability."

"There are certain common-sense things they have to know," he said, "like you don't blow a police whistle when you deliver a telegram at a hospital!"

Recipients of Merry Minstrel telegrams, which range in price from $30 to $100 depending on the act and the delivery distance, receive souvenirs of the occasion—a written telegram, balloons, bumper stickers and tee-shirts which say "Merry Minstrel got me."

Smith said his company has delivered telegrams to numerous celebrities, including a member of the Rolling Stones, Loretta Lynn, Billy Carter, Ronald Reagan and Richard Pryor.

Louisiana Governors Dave Treen and Edwin Edwards and New Orleans Mayor Dutch Morial have received Merry Minstrel telegrams.

So has Harrison County Sheriff Larkin Smith and District Attorney Cono Caranna, Smith said.

As Merry Minstrel owner, Smith writes, sings, dances and acts.

He said he started writing as a child. But he has never had singing, dancing or acting lessons.

"I don't call myself a dancer," he said. "I move."

"And singing is not a necessity. Some of our messengers are real howlers in that regard."

MY, HOW THE TEN-WORD BLACK-AND-YELLOW TELEGRAM HAS CHANGED!—Costumed singing messengers from Merry Minstrel, Inc. deliver their telegrams anytime, anywhere. The company began serving Gulf Coast residents last September. Owners Sidney and Delery Smith live in Kila with their three-year-old son, "the youngest Minstrel."

Yolanda King to highlight Black History observance

Yolanda King, oldest child of the late Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. and Mrs. Coretta Scott King, who has gained prominence in the area of civil rights in her own right, will highlight Black History Week activities at Rust College in Holly Springs.

She will be speaking on Feb. 21 at 8 p.m. in the Albert Morehouse Auditorium.

Miss King received her BA in theatre and African-American studies with honors in theatre from Smith College in Northampton, Mass.

She then moved to New York University where she obtained an MFA.

However, it was at the Actor's and Writer's Workshop in Atlanta where Ms. King realized she had found her calling.

Growing up in a home environment deeply involved in service to humanity, Yolanda naturally assimilated this value.

Though not traditionally regarded as a service-oriented profession, working in the performing arts requires an ability to fully share the person that you are.

Armed with this discovery, Miss King has combined her commitment to social change with her theatrical pursuits.

As she defines it, "while it is imperative to actively challenge the forces that deny human beings their rights to a decent life, one must also stimulate and alter the hearts and minds of both the privileged and those who have been too long denied."

Miss King's film credits include the role of Rosa Parks in 'King', an NBC made-for-television movie; the manageress in 'Hopscotch' and the role of Betty Shabazz in 'The Death of a Prophet', about Malcolm X to be aired on PBS-TV.

Her publications include 'Using Television to Teach Nonviolence' in 'Teachers Guides to Television' and columns for 'Black Family Magazine' which highlights family-oriented artistic offerings.

Miss King's engagement at Rust College is free and open to all.

Draft registration compliance rate high in Mississippi

During the last four months of 1983, 18-year-old men headed to the post office in greater numbers to register with Selective Service.

Three major world events - the downing of the Korean jetliner, the bombing of the Marine headquarters in Beirut, and the invasion of Grenada - may partially explain the increase in registrations.

To date 11.3 million men have registered with Selective Service. Approximately 90.6% of the draft eligibles (men born in 1960-1964) have registered.

Alaska, Wyoming, Nevada, and Florida are the highest ranking states in the country with compliance rate at 100%. Ohio and Washington are at the median level with compliance rates of 99% each.

California is the lowest ranking state with a rate of 89%. Other examples are Montana 98%, Alabama 98%, and Vermont 98%.

Mississippi's young men born in the years 1960-1964 have a compliance rate of 97.75%, which ranks Mississippi 37 in the country.

Col. Edgar F. Rapp Jr., Mississippi state director, stated that, "this increase in registration shows me that young men today love their country and are willing to accept the responsibilities that living here entails. Over 11 million young men have registered so far and I'm very proud of those who are Mississippi citizens."

The compliance rate for year of birth 1965 is only 87% which indicates that many of those currently reaching their 18th birthday have not registered on time. They should comply with this federal law immediately, Rapp urged.

Young men born in 1960 and later years must register within 30 days of their 18th birthday. At this time, a man must register with Selective Service to receive federal student aid and job training benefits.

QUESTION - Exclusive of alcohol, what is the number one drug problem in the United States today?

- Marijuana
- Valium
- Heroin
- PCP (Angel Dust)

ANSWER - Dr. Conway Hunter, Jr., medical director of the Addictive Disease Unit, Peachford Hospital, Atlanta, Ga., told a Senate Subcommittee recently that 44.6 million new prescriptions and refills of Valium were filled in 1978. "These tranquilizers are often inappropriately prescribed by physicians who fail to understand the addictive potential," he said. "Thousands of Americans are hooked on these drugs without realizing it. The abuse is a growing and very serious public health problem."

Correct answer - b.

The teacher education hoax

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following article, the last of a three-part series, is the result of a project funded by the Mississippi Committee for the Humanities to the Mississippi Press Association. The opinions expressed are those of the author and not those of either organization.

By David Hicks
 Former Headmaster
 St. Andrews Academy
 Jackson
 Now Headmaster
 St. Mark's School of Texas

My comments about teacher education institutions should not be construed as a blanket attack on all teacher education. Some preparation for teaching is, no doubt, desirable, but not at the expense of a rigorous general education or of advanced study in specific content areas.

I believe an effective teacher education program will:

—Not dilute the course of study needed to pursue a major degree in a content area such as history, French or chemistry;

—Broaden the aspiring teacher's undergraduate exposure to content courses in order to assure him or her of a solid general education;

—Emphasize the mastery of written and oral expression;—Provide bright, highly-motivated liberal arts graduates with immediate access to the teaching profession by offering them an opportunity to "trial" teach;

—Involve the use of proven effective teachers as teacher-education instructors, and not rely upon social scientists for this purpose;

—Provide experienced teachers from outside Mississippi with immediate access to the teaching profession by not throwing up idiosyncratic course requirements for state certification.

All of these characteristics can be achieved through what might be called the State Teacher's Institute (STI).

The STI would be housed on one of the state's university campuses, and it would be composed of a small year-round graduate program in education and an extensive summer institute.

The summer institute would provide a kind of laboratory for the graduate program, and students and teachers from the graduate program would provide the staff, but not the faculty, for the summer institute.

The faculty for the institute would be recruited from elementary and secondary schools throughout the state.

They would be nominated as master teachers by their respective school principals and superintendents and chosen for their ability to motivate students to learn as indicated by the academic achievements of their students over the years.

They would be finally selected each year as winners of STI Faculty Fellowships by the small graduate program faculty attached to the university.

This would achieve the benefits of publicly and financially rewarding excellent teachers throughout the state, of bringing the state's best teachers together once a year for the purpose of sharing ideas with one another and of nurturing young and inexperienced teachers, of building a professional esprit among the state's teachers and of bringing the university's theoretical educationists into regular contact with the finest practitioners of the art.

The student-teachers for the summer institute would be teachers with no more than three years of experience. Presumably, the state would require all teachers to complete successfully the summer institute within two or three years of beginning to teach.

In order to qualify for the program, student-teachers would have to earn at least a bachelor's degree in their teaching area; that is, someone teaching English should hold a bachelor's degree in English. They should be employed in a Mississippi elementary or secondary school during the year in which they apply for admission to the STI.

Funding for the room and board of student-teachers would be provided by the local school districts, whereas funding for the STI Faculty Fellowships would be provided by the state.

The students for the summer institute would be drawn from throughout the state and possibly from outside Mississippi.

Those who could afford to pay tuition would pay it, and state-funded scholarships would be available on the basis of need for those who could not afford to pay. Most of the students would board at the university.

The STI would operate along the lines of a high-powered summer school. Its programs would range from special classes for severely dyslexic children to college-level courses in astronomy and physics.

All classes would be taught by a master teacher who would be assisted by two or three student-teachers.

The overall program would be administered and evaluated by the graduate school's faculty and students.

The summer institute itself would last six weeks, but master teachers and student-teachers would convene a week early and leave a week late, staying eight weeks, in order to organize classes and to evaluate their experience.

Adoption of this proposal would meet all of the six previously-stated conditions for an effective teacher education program, and would dramatically simplify the present cumbersome and ineffective teacher certification system.

Moreover, this proposal, while not rejecting modern efforts to apply scientific reasoning to the study of education, recognizes teaching as essentially a craft. It offers an apprentice-type program whereby the craft of teaching can be passed on from one generation to the next, as all crafts are, through on-the-job training of experienced teachers by master practitioners.

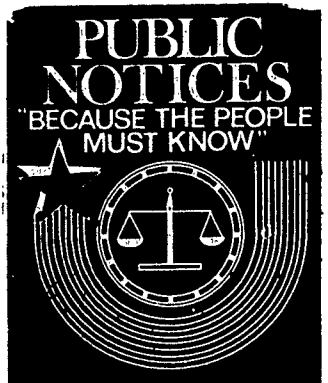

Not only would a significant saving of state funds appear likely, but the STI would have a profound influence on the quality of education at every level throughout the state. Master teachers would return to their schools as acknowledged leaders in their craft, reinvigorated. Student-teachers would return to their schools with a vision of what teaching in Mississippi can be, a vision derived from working with the best teachers throughout the state. And students would return to their schools advanced in learning, inspired by their exposure to some truly outstanding teachers, and, one may hope, insistent upon a higher grade of instruction at the local level.

The university would benefit from having a unique laboratory on its campus and from the influx of better-taught, better-prepared college freshmen.

This proposal, it seems to me, is tailor-made for Mississippi. The idea of a State Teacher's Institute fits comfortably in a state where the sense of local identity and of individual self-worth is as strong as it is here.

Above all, in our quest for educational reform the STI does not mean higher taxes and more state legislation, but probably less of each, while at the same time providing a tangible proof of our determination to reform our schools one by one and from the bottom up.
